The Newfoundland Registers of Vital Statistics: Pre-1891 Schedules

In 1891 the Government of Newfoundland began a national registry of births, marriages and deaths. Before then, there was no centralized government system for recording marriages and other vital events. As well, what was often recorded by civil authorities were population numbers rather than individual items. Marriages were noted in religious registers. However, by the 1930s some of the older church registers were in very poor condition. With this in mind Sir John Charles Puddester began a campaign of transcribing the earlier records. Those transcriptions are what is indexed in this work.

What the Transcriptions Reveal

Persons consulting the transcriptions available on-line (indexed in this book) may discover the following details of the persons they are researching: 1) name of groom and bride; 2) date and place of marriage; 3) age of bride and groom; 4) marital status; 5) occupation; 6) religion; 7) residence; 8) witnesses to the marriage; 9) officiator.

The Index By Category and How it Works

All names are organized by the surname then given name of the groom. From there they are ordered by that of the bride. For instance, this index has five marriages with the name Robert Miller (p. 197). The five marriages are in order of the bride's family name: (1) Robert Miller & Dinah Beard, m.1879; (2) Robert Miller & Anne Churchill, m. 1829; (3) Robert Miller & Emma Harvey, m. 1802; (4) Robert Miller & Elizabeth Ryan, m. 1840 and (5) Robert Miller & Sarah Smith, m. 1829.

GROOM. The first and last names of the groom are written into this index. If middle names were recorded in an act they will also appear. In addition, aliases or secondary surnames will be evident. Today, given names are sometimes abbreviated to shorter forms (i.e. Vincent may be written as Vince or Joseph as Joe). Shorter forms such as these were prevalent in the 18th and 19th centuries. A table follows below which will exemplify these names. When the transcriptions were written in the 1930s they were realized in the long form. However, some short form names can be found in them. Lastly, initials such as: M.D. (Medical Doctor), Esq. (a common term in English speaking countries for a gentleman or nobleman below a knight, in the U.S. that of a lawyer) and Hon. for judges, legal officers and politicians.

BRIDE. The first and last names of the bride are written into this index. If middle names were recorded in an act they will also appear. In addition, some brides have 'alias' names found herein. However, here it is a case of maiden names. For instance, Michael Cahill married in 1870 to Elizabeth Longwell alias Mitchell. Longwell would be Elizabeth's maiden name while Mitchell is her former husband's name.

DATE. This refers to the date the actual ceremony was performed. It is not a registration date. Newfoundland was not registering vital events till 1891. A few of the acts only have the year listed and several only give the month and year. Similarly, in the familysearch.org microfilming and digitization images the 1754-56 page was damaged and thus only year dates are certain.

PLACE. There are three place categories: DISTRICT: St. John's or St. John's East and St. John's West. The division occurred in 1854. PARISH/MUNICIPALITY: A parish sometimes covered a large area and could have several towns in it. For instance the cathedral of St. John's even had missions many miles away from its location. LOCAL PLACE: This is the actual place the marriage ceremony occurred. To illustrate, let's look at the case of William Bragg. In 1844 when William got married for the first time, he belonged to the St. John's District Anglican (C of E) parish of Pouch Cove. However, he was actually married about 15 km away in Torbay. In 1854 William Bragg of St. John's District Anglican (C of E) parish of Pouch Cove married the second time but this time it was in Pouch Cove. Thus the reasoning behind the above categories.

CREED. Religion. These are non-Catholic records as apparently only 6% of Roman Catholic unions made their way into the pre-1891 transcriptions. In St. John's district Anglican/Church of England weddings are noted as well as Methodist/United Church marriages.
